

CommunityResponse®

Mental Health Education and Screening Programs.

From customized online screening to health fair style events, CommunityResponse helps organizations educate their community and connect those in need with mental health treatment resources. It also has tools that help you promote your mental health services both in-person and online.

Meeting People Where They Are:

Online Screening Program

Available for mood disorders, alcohol use disorders and eating disorders. The online program offers many features that make it simple and easy to use including:

- Customizable welcome page featuring logo, photo, and welcome message
- Customizable referral page featuring information on how to access local resources
- Unique URL that can be added to your organization's website
- Utilization reports that are sent automatically

Also included is full access to the Downloadable Kit, which has a variety of promotional templates, flyers and educational materials.

Open Your Doors!

Join hundreds of community-based organizations nationwide by hosting a National Depression Screening Day® (NDS) event in your community. Held on October 6th this year, NDS can be hosted as a stand-alone event, or as part of a health fair that happens any day of the year.

NDS Community Kit

Includes 50 adult screening forms (with scoring instructions); 1 banner; 10 posters; 1 DVD on mental health; a variety of brochures; 1 clinician packet with pocket diagnostic cards on depression, generalized anxiety disorder (GAD), posttraumatic stress disorder, bipolar disorder and suicide assessment; and full access to the Downloadable Kit where you can print out even more materials.

NDS Downloadable Kit

Download and print copies of the screening form, educational handouts, clinician guides, promotional templates and posters. This kit is perfect for organizations that would like to contain costs by printing their own event materials.

Please note: Eligible organizations include advocacy groups, social service agencies, hospitals, community health centers/clinics and private practices. If your organization does not fall into one of these categories, please contact Screening for Mental Health for other options.

Helping Older Adults Build Resiliency

According to the National Institute of Mental Health, many older adults believe depression is a normal part of aging. While grief and sadness over loss is normal, depression that is persistent and interferes with daily activities is not.

FeelGood Bingo®

Feel Good Bingo offers a fresh spin on the classic game by introducing the symptoms of depression and general anxiety disorder (GAD) to older adults in a fun way. The game can help older adults build resiliency by stimulating learning about a new subject and providing a social, interactive activity. Supporting materials are provided that encourage individuals to reach out for assistance.

Game components: 50 bingo boards and 24 master cards that show images of the signs of depression and GAD for players to match to images on their bingo boards. Game also includes 50 screening forms, 50 educational flyers and access to the Community Downloadable Kit.
